"There will be no trouble about completing the street work mapped out for this year," was Mayor Yelin referring street improvement ordinances back to the general council.

G. A. R. GROWING IN MEMBERSHIP

Inroads of Death Counterbalanced Last Year.

Corporal Tanner's Address at National Encampment Contains Surprises.

ALL MEN OF HIGH CHARACTER.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 16 .- In opening his annual address to the national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, Corporal James Tanner, commander-in-chief of the organization, today made the somewhat surprising statement that, despite the inroads made by death the Grand Army had actually increased in membership in the past

"I had considered it almost inevitable," he said, "that on this occasion I would be compelled to report to you a very considerable net loss in membership. On the contrary, I am happy to tell you that, by reason of the zealous interest taken in our order by many comrades, we have been able to more than offset the losses incurred by death, and that our order stands today 3,500 stronger in numbers than it did at Denver last September."

High Character.

Continuing, he said: "The character of the Grand Army never stood higher than it does at the present moment.

"Repeatedly during the past year on various public occasions I have definitely called attention to the fact that while the public conscience has been shocked and outraged by the exposure of moral turpitude on the part of many of those who stood among the so-called most eminent men of the nation, eminent in financial and religious circles. trusted guardians of the interests of widows and orphans for whom loven ones, now dead and gone, hal thought they had made careful safeguard to cover the necessities for comfort through all their natura; life, men who in church circles stood on the very steps of the altar, trusted cupbearers of the cause of Christ, poverty of soul and honor as compared to Lazarus, in his lowest state, might justly be considered a "Statistics multi-millionaire-in all the dist, search it from top to bottom, the name of not a veteran of the civil

He spoke at length of the effort; made by his comrades and their officers in the direction of the enactment of a service pension law providing for $12 a month for every civil war veteran, in the interest of widows' pensions from $8 to $12 a month. The committee found that although such a law would take at present $34,000,000 additional out of the United States treasury, in another year the amount would be greatly decreased,

Today our volume of business— $4,000,000.00 per year—represents the appropriations of nearly 700 clients, so the average appropriation is less than $6,000.00 per year.

Some of our clients who started with small appropriations are now placing over $100,000.00 yearly with us, and their businesses have grown and are continuing to grow in proportion.

The great majority of our clients are now appropriating less than $3,000.00 per year. Our future growth depends upon the development of these $3,000.00a-year advertisers into the $100,000.00-a-

We want an opportunity to show you how YOU can start advertising with a small appropriation and get into the $100,000.00-a-year class.

The small investor always is in greatest need of protection for his investment. We realize that the $1,000 appropriation of the beginner means more to him than the $100,000.00 appropriation of the older advertiser. We govern ourselves accordingly. We want to tell you how we safe-guard your advertising appropriation by basing your investment on the only trustworthy guide in advertising—the Lord & Thomas Record of Results.

Our exclusive Record of Results is the classified, indexed tabulation of actual results from hundreds of small and large advertising campaigns.

This record is interpreted, and the positive knowledge gained thereby is applied to your business by the ablest and highest salaried corps of advertising men in America.

They esteem their reputations too highly to place themselves in a position to become besmattered by the mud-guns of a vicious and irresponsible press. Were the charges of corruption always made specific, the object of the attack might exonerate himself in court; but the libel laws are evaded by accusing the general council of graft, or the board of public works of dealing with its own members, or whatever particular body is aimed at. To the credit of the press let it be said, that the majority far as the Beckham administration is of the newspapers are above this sort of thing; but one in each community is sufficient to prevent sensitive men braving its assaults.

Here in Paducah members of publie bodies who have given their time and patience freely to the city, have resigned at the end of one term, sick of a work in which their best endeavors meet only with charges of wrong doing and in which their most sincere actions are misconstrued.

Carping criticism, slanderous innuendo and broad accusation are not the ear-marks of righteous journalism, and the newspaper that indulges in such extravagances should be classed with the individual, whose tongue wags the same way. The latter mouths his facts to suit his views; the obnoxious paper colors its news to match its editorial policy.

Of course the largest benefit from a 9 foot stage will be the possibility of running boats all the year round But all river towns will get a more direct benfiet from it than one which considering the ponderous slownessof congress even when it goes its best pace and the necessarily long time needed to complete the work, will be several years off before realization. The actual construction which ought to begin within a year, will stimulate river business all along the line from the increased labor required to do the work. That means that the boat stores along the river will sell more and the boats will get fat contracts hauling the material of construction, but chiefly, at all the towns along the river, the laborers will spend their earnings. When it is remembered that the work will cost millions, it is apparent that a 9 foot stage will be a considerable industrial stimulation to the entire Ohio Valley.

Buy a Pair and Make an Old Suit New

THIS sale is probably awaited with more interest than any of our money-saving cut price sales, with the exception of the suit sale, as the economical dressers recognize the opportunities it affords of making a new suit out of an old one by the addition of a pair of odd trousers. The trousers usually wear out long before the coat to a suit seems worn, and the addition of a new pair renews the suit.

In this sale we have put all of our odd trousers, and there are just any number of most excellent bargains in the lot---the fa-

The Manager Of the B. Q. A.

By VAUGHAN KESTER

The instant he saw him the doctor it for you. That was all." rose from his seat on the steps and came quickly down the walk. There was no mistaking the cordiality he gave his greeting, for he intended there should be none. Mrs. Emory, too, took pains that he should feel the friendliness of her sentiment toward him. Constance, however, appeared embar-rassed and ill at ease, and Dan's face grew very white. He felt that he had no real appreciation of the changed he asked, detaining him conditions since his father's story had become public property. He saw it made a difference in the way his friends viewed him. He had become bardened, and it had been impossible for him to foresee just how it would affect others, but to these people it was plainly a shock. The very kindliness he had experienced at the hands of the doctor and Mrs. Emory only served to show how great the shock was, their gracious, generous fashion they had sought to make it easy for him.

Oakley and the editor did not speak. Civility seemed the rankest hypocrisy under the circumstances. A barely perceptible inclination of the head sufficed, and then Ryder turned abruptly to Miss Emory and resumed his con versation with her.

Dan seated himself beside the doctor on the steps. He was completely crushed. He hadn't the wit to leave, and he knew that he was a fool for staying. What was the good in carrying on the uphill fight any longer Courage is a fine quality, no doubt, but It is also well for a man to have sense enough to know when he is fairly beaten, and he was fairly beaten.

He took stock of the situation. Quite independent of his hatred of the fellow, he resented Ryder's presence there beside Constance. But what was the use of struggling? The sooner he banished all thought of her the better it would be for blm. His chances had never been worth considering.

He stole a glance at the pair, who had drawn a little to one side and were talking in low tones and with the intimacy of long acquaintance. He owned they were wonderfully well suited to each other. Ryder was no mean rival, had it come to that. The world had given him its rub. He knew perfectly the life with which Miss Emory was familiar. His people had been the right sort. He was well born and well bred, and he showed it.

It dawned upon the unwilling Oakley slowly and by degrees that to Constance Emory he must be nothing more or less than the son of a murderer. He had never quite looked at it in that light before. He had been occupied with the effect rather than the cause but he was sure that if Ryder had told her his father's history he had made the most of his opportunity. He wondered how people felt about a thing of this kind. He knew now what his portion would be. Disgrace is always vicarious in its consequences. The innocent generally suffer indiscriminately along with the guilty.

The doctor talked a steady stream at Oakley, but he managed to say little that made any demand on Dan's attenwas sorry for the young He had liked him from the start, and he believed but a small part of what he had heard. It is true he had had the particulars from Ryder, but Ryder said what he had to say with his usual lazy indifference, as if his interest was the slightest and had vouched for no part of it.

that he himself was the head and front of the offending. Dr. Emory would not have understood how it could have been any business of his. It would have finished him with the latter. As it was, he had been quick to resent his glib, sneering tone.

But Dan's manner convinced the doctor that there were some grounds for the charges made by the hands when they demanded Roger Oakley's dismissal, or else he was terribly hurt by the occurrence. While Dr. Emory was reaching this conclusion Dan was curs ing himself for his stupidity. It would have been much wiser for him to have remained away until Antioch quieted down. Perhaps it would have been fairer, too, to his friends, but since he had blundered he would try and see Miss Emory again. She should know the truth. It was characteristic of him that he should wish the matter put straight, even when there was no especlal advantage to be gained.

Soon afterward he took his leave. The doctor followed him down to the gate. There was a certain constraint in the manner of the two men, now that they were alone together. they paused by the gate Dr. Emory broke silence with:

"For God's sake, Oakley, what is this I hear about your father? I'd like your assurance that it is all a pack of

A lump came into Dan's throat, and he answered huskily:

"I am sure it is not at all as you have heard. I am sure the facts are quite different from the account you have heard"-

"No, I can't deny it outright, much as I'd like to.'

"You don't mean- Pardon me, for, of course, I have no right to ask."

Dan turned away his face. "I don't know any one who has a better right

"Substantially, yes. Good night," he

"Wait," hastily. "I don't want you o go just yet." He put out his hand to go just yet." frankly. "It's nothing you have done anyhow," he said as an afterthought. "No, but, I begin to think it might just as well have been.

Dr. Emory regarded him earnestly. "My boy, I'm awfully sorry for you, and I'm afraid you have got in for more than you can manage. It looks as though your troubles were all coming in a bunch."

"My antecedents won't affect the situation down at the shops, if that is what you mean. The men may not like me any the better or respect me any the more for knowing of them, but they will discover that that will make no difference where our relations are concerned.'

"To be sure. I only meant that public opinion will be pretty strong against you. It somehow has an influence," ruefully.

"I suppose it has," rather sadly. "Do you have to stay and face it? It might be easier, you know-don't mean exactly to run away"-

"I am pledged to put the shops and road on a paying basis for General Cornish. He'd about made up his mind to sell to the M. and W. If he does it will mean the closing of the shops, and they will never be opened up again. That will wipe Antioch off the map. Not so very long ago I had a good deal of sympathy for the people who would be ruined, and I can't change simply because they have, can 1?" with a look on his face which belonged to his father.

The doctor stroked his beard meditatively and considered the question. "I suppose there is such a thing as duty, but don't you think, under the circumstances, your responsibility is really very light?" Dan laughed softly

"No. I can't deny it outright. "I didn't imagine you would be the first to advise me to shirk it."

"I wouldn't ordinarily, but you don't know Antioch. They can make it very unpleasant for you. The town is in a fever of excitement over what has hap pened today. It seems the men are not through with you yet."

"Yes, I know. My father should have gone back. It looks as if I'd yielded, but I couldn't ask him to when I saw how he felt about it."

"You see, the town lives off the shops and road. It is a personal matter to every man, woman, and child in the

"That's what makes me so mad at the stupid fools!" said Oakley, with some bitterness. "They haven't the brains to see that they have a lot more at stake than any one else. If they could gain anything from a fight I'd have plenty of patience with them, but they are sure losers. Even if they strike and the shops are closed for the next six months it won't cost Cornish a dollar-indeed, it will be money in

"I don't think they'll strike," said the doctor. "I didn't mean that exactly, but they'll try to keep you on a

"They have done about all they can in that direction. The worst has happened. I won't say it didn't bruise me up a bit. Why, I am actually sore in every bone and muscle. I was never so battered, but I'm beginning to get back, and I'm going to live the whole thing down right here. I can't have skeletons that are liable to be unearth ed at any moment.'

PERSECUTIONS OF THE RUSSIAN JEWS

Arise From Several Causes Says Observer.

Jews, Officials, Churchmen and Representatives Give Different Versions,

INCITED BY THE AUTHORITIES.

I have asked almost everybody I have seen in St. Petersburg abou the reasons and causes for the perse cution of the Jews, and have receiv ed a variety of information, although the inquirer on such problems is at ways told that no foreigner can un derstand the psychology of the Rus sian race or its mental processes. It is the almost unanimous opinion that the primary cause of the massacre are political and economical rather than religious, although there is an undercurrent of fanaticism among the Russian peasantry which has frequently been appealed to by the leaders of the "progromes"-a new word recently coined to describe the frequent uprisings instigated by government for the looting and mas sacre of members of Jewish commu

The chief causes are jealousy of the success of the Jewish race in commercial, financial, professional, literary and scientific careers, its aggressiveness and ambition and enterprise, its sobriety, industry and thrift, and its ability to thrive under circumstances where a Russian is unable to make a Hving. The public prejudice against the race is account ed for in that way. The opposition of the government and the police si attributed to vengeance because the Jews have been the most persistent the most resourceful and the mos effective revolutionaries. When some desperate deed is done you may be sure that the chief actor is a Jew o a Pole. When the police are outwit ted humbugged and humfliated, you may be sure that a Jew has devised the plan. The ablest revolutionar leaders are Jews. The men who led the strikes last winter and those who have stirred up the greatest amount of trouble among the peasants were Jews. Jewish revolutionists constitute about 50 per cent of the membership of the secret societies, and they are the most intelligent, active and ingenious. Nearly all of the refolutionary leaders I have met in St. Petersburg are Jews, and the editors and reporters of the revolutionary papers belong to that race. That accounts for the attitude of the ministry and the police. Jewish Deputies.

The Jewish deputies in the douma tell me that, in their opinion, the government and the police are responsi ole for the massacres as well as the persecutions. If they so desired they could prevent both. They assert that no mob has ever been organized against a Jewish community that has not been led or inspired by a government official. They assert that there has not been a Jew persecuted or robbed or murdered in Russia for the ast ten years for which the government was not directly responsible

A Catholic View. Archbishop Roop of the Roman Catholic church, who is a member of the douma from the city of Wilna, where nearly one-half of the popula tion are Jews, told me that in his diocese there was no religious prejudice whatever, that the members of the three faiths-Roman Catholic, Greek orthodox and the Jewish-lived in perfect accord and that there would never be the slightest friction among them were it not instigated by officials, soldiers and the police, who formed an entirely distinct group from the rest of the community, and were more frequently disturbers than pre servers of the peace. He declared that this was equally true in the city of Bialystok, which is also in his diocese, although a religious proclama tion intended to arouse the followers of Christ was circulated very largely among the ignorant classes for several days previous to the recent massacre

"If the police and other officials would let the Jews alone," said Mon signore Roop with great emphasis 'there would be no trouble about the rest of the people.-William E. Curtis in Chicago Record-Herald.

"Remorse," said Mayor Wells of St. Louis, "is an excellent thing when deep enough.

"The trouble with most wrong-do ers, when remorse overtakes them is that the emotion is feeble

"The average type of remorse was that of a pickpocket who sent last year this note to a man whom he had robbed of $100:

"'Dear Sir: I stole your money Remorse gnaws my conscience, and 1 return herewith $1.50."
